TRAINING COURSES

Fire Door Inspection Training

From January 2023, certain buildings will require additional fire door inspections. This short site-based training course allows you to complete your own inspections in between more formal surveys undertaken by qualified assessors.

This course teaches:

- Certification – understand what a certification means, how/where to find the information, what it looks like and what to do if certification cannot be confirmed
- Gaps – find out what an acceptable gap is, how to measure it and what to do if gaps are too large
- Seals – understand the role of seals, where they should be located, assessing their effectiveness and how resolve issues
- Hinges – discover how to check door hinges are correct, sufficient in number and fit for purpose
- Closes – how to check if doors close correctly
- Glass – understand what type of glass is required in a fire door, how to check and note its overall condition

The course will allow delegates to complete a fire door inspection and they will receive a certificate of attendance. It will not make delegates accredited fire door inspectors/assessors Designed for anyone who may need to complete fire door inspections.

Seek and Search Training

Site-based staff responsible for responding to a fire alarm activation need to know how to approach potential fires safely. This course will provide training in how to conduct the seek and search aspect of any role requiring staff to seek confirmation of the reason for an alarm activation.

This course teaches:

- Fire strategy – why we have a seek and search (investigation) strategy
- Roles and responsibilities
- How to approach a potential fire situation
- How to complete a dynamic risk assessment
- When and how to open a door/enter a room
- Required reporting and recording
- Handover requirements to the attending Fire Brigade officer in charge

There will also be the chance to ask questions and conduct a site walk with an experienced fire-fighter. Each delegate will receive an attendance certificate.
